tirely unbalanced. This is the wreck of a really excellent mind cultivated with the Republican party with the defeat of the amendment in Pennsylvania. They seem to forget that the majority against the amendment is at least twice the majority ever rolled up by the Republican party in Pennsylvania. The truth is that men voted as they pleased, without party trammel.

The Competition for a Naval Cadetship. There is some misapprehension concerning the competitive examination in this city for a cadetship in the Naval Academy. A boy rejected by the ex-aminers appointed by Mr. Pendleton may apply again whenever he has the opportunity; and a boy passed by these examiners may be rejected on examination by the Naval Academy examiners.

In other words, the home examination is not official and therefore not conclu sive. It merely decides by competition the matter of appointment. After that the successful aspirant must run the gauntlet of the official examination at Household Santistics.

Thousands of lives would have been saved in Johnstown if the poople had heeded the cry of danger. They had often before heard that the dam was about to break; but it never did break about to break; but it never did break before and they thought themselves secure this time. Dams elsewhere had cure this time. Dams elsewhere had broken and swept away lives, but they could not realize that they were in peril at that very moment. The Santlary Era takes this for a text, and a good one it is:

takes this for a text, and a good one it is:

Hundreds of thousands of families live in 'like secure negligence of dangers about and within them that sweep away more lives every year than the aggregate destroyed by 'all the floods on record since the country was settled.
